CLAIMS MONEY PLAYED A PART

Sensational Charges Made Against Machine, by
G. H. Buckstaff.

TO DOWN HARVEY

Independent Book Dealers
Gave $2,000; Promised
$8,000 More.

A SWORN STATEMENT

(Special By Scripps-Melteca.)
Madison, Wis., July 18.—Sensational charges of bribery were made last evening by George H. Buckstaff, one of Governor LaFollette's staunchest friends and supporters. Not only did Mr. Buckstaff make charges against the political ring that downed School Superintendent Harvey, but he also was substantiated by Senator Stout, another LaFollette man, and ex-Governor Hoard.

Promised $10,000

In brief the charges were that to secure the defeat of the re-nomination of L. D. Harvey the independent book companies of the country had donated $2,000 to the campaign fund as a feaver and had promised $5,000 to $10,000 more if the plot was successful.

Signed Statements

Mr. Buckstaff does not make a statement over his own signature unless he can substantiate the story. He is a careful, conservative, politician and is more than aroused over the situation as it now stands. Both he and Senator Stout left the convention hall when they found that Cary had been chosen in the place of Harvey. Had it been Stalwarts it would have been called bolting the convention.

Hoard Indignant

Governor Hoard is also very indignant. While he did not say anything on the subject it is understood that he takes very much at heart the turn-down of his friend Senator Spooner.

Sentiment For Spooener

Sentiment throughout the city is much disposed to censure the action of the machine in restricting Senator Spooener as they did and the general opinion is that a republican assembly will be chosen who will vote for Spooener for Senator regardless of the fact whether he approves of the state platform or not.

Buckstaff's Statement

Madison, Wis., July 17.—To whom it may concern: Two thousand dollars was contributed to a political fund by the independent book companies provided a candidate was brought into the field against Superintendent Harvey. It was also agreed that a further sum not to be less than $5,000 and perhaps amounting to $10,000 would be subscribed if Mr. Harvey was defeated for re-nomination. If the man who nominated Mr. Cary wishes further particulars, let him make a public request and detailed information will be forthcoming.

DISASTROUS FIRE IN RHODE ISLAND

Hotels and Other Property Valued at $200,000, Are Destroyed in a Big Conflagration.

(Special By Scripps-Melteca.)
Block Island, R. I., July 18.—The National and Narragansett hotels, the telegraph office, the weather bureau and several other places were burned this morning.

No Definite Word
Owing to the burning of the telegraph office there is no definite word and the reports brought to the mainland do not tell the particulars. The Surf House was badly damaged. The loss is placed at $200,000.

WOMAN BURNS TO DEATH: HUSBAND BADLY HURT

Throws Waste Paper on a Bonfire and the Flames Communicate to Her Dress.

Cincinnati, O., July 18.—At the Casella mansion on Walnut hills, the fashionable residence section of the city, Mrs. E. M. Castello was burned to death and her husband was seriously burned in an effort to rescue her.

A servant was burning rubbish on the lawn when Mrs. Castello stepped out to throw some paper on the fire. The wind caused the blaze to veer as she approached, and in an instant her dress was ablaze. Her husband and son rushed to her rescue, the latter being slightly and the former seriously burned. Mr. Castello is a rich contractor.

Miss Taylor Is Free
Genoa, Italy, July 18.—The courts have refused to grant the extradition of Clara Taylor, whose return to the United States was asked on the charge of having kidnapped her niece, and she was liberated. The court's action was based on the ground that Miss Taylor was actuated by a good motive in abducting the child.

MITCHELL SCORES SIGNAL VICTORY

His Plan for the Relief of Miners
Endorsed—There Will Be No Strike.

(Special By Scripps-Melteca.)

Indianapolis, July 18.—President Mitchell of the anthracite miners has won a wonderful endorsement from the miners. His clear-minded reasoning has saved the country from a general strike in all of the coal regions.

Pointed Out Best Course

Even the anthracite men have admitted that Mitchell has pointed out the best course for them to follow with any hopes of succeeding in the end.

Benefit to Strikers

His suggestion if adopted will yield over $2,000,000 a month to the fund of the strikers. This will keep them above water and they can continue the strike for some time to come.

FAILURE TO ENDORSE SENATOR SPOONER BRINGS STORM OF PROTEST

Leading Politicians and Prominent Newspapers Express Surprise and Indignation Over the Convention's Action on Wednesday Last.

Throughout the country at large, as deplorable as it is impolitic.

Since the death of Cushman K. Davis, John C. Spooner has been, by force of his ability and by common consent, the republican leader in the senate. As a political tactician he has thwarted democratic maneuvers against a republican administration. As a leader in debate he has successfully resisted democratic attacks on republican policies. In the field of constructive statesmanship his name is intimately associated with all the more important measures carried through the Fifty-Seventh Congress.

Mr. Spooner's speeches in defense of the army and in support of the Philippine policy of the government were among the most remarkable and convincing addresses ever delivered before the senate. His work in the framing of the ship canal bill and other bills will stand for many years as a rebuke to all those who have clouded our legislation with equivocal and turgid language.

Senator Spooner has been as conspicuous for his unwavering republicanism as for his success in incorporating republican policies in law. He has served not only the republicans of Wisconsin but the republicans of the whole country. His whole career in the senate has been most creditable to the Northwest, and it is to be regretted that there should be in his own state a half-hearted recognition of the real value of his services to the party and the nation.

General Grosvenor, Orléans: "Senator Spooner is too big a man to be the tail of anybody's kite. He must not be defeated."

United States Senator Cockrell, Democrat from Missouri: "Senator Spooner is a constructive statesman and if his party is deprived of his services it will be a distinct loss to the nation at large."

TOBACCO CROP PROMISES WELL

WEATHER IS A HINDRANCE

The Rain Does Not Allow Farmers Time To Cultivate the Weeds.

At the present time the outlook for an immense yield of tobacco surpasses that of any previous year. The present warm weather is making the growth phenomenal. The frequent rains have supplied the necessary moisture and the crop has forged steadily ahead. The only drawback so far is that the ground is kept so wet by the frequent rains that it is difficult to properly care for the growing crop. Steady cultivation is necessary for uniform growth.

Should Stir Soil

It is absolutely necessary that the soil should be kept well stirred up. Many of the growers have already gone over their fields three times and will continue to do so until the plants cover the rows. The harvest bids fair to be an early one and will crowd the farmers to keep up with their work.

Are Limited

Old leaf transactions are of a limited nature and the market is very dull. The remnants of cured leaf in the farmers' hands are staying by them, the dealers not taking any particular interest in the crop.

In Ohio the inability of the thermometer to get up to within 10 degrees of the temperature normal at this season is proving somewhat of a setback to tobacco plants, and as the lower temperature has been accompanied by unusually heavy and cold rains, the prospects of an early and full crop are at present none of the brightest. The same weather seems to have prevailed in other tobacco growing sections, and we are not apparently suffering any more than others, but conditions are bad enough.

It is significant that the packers who have representatives here have resumed the search for whatever old leaf remains unsold. The idea that the crop may be short has occurred to farmers as well as buyers, and those who hold 1900 or 1901 leaf are not inclined to let it go except at entirely satisfactory figures.

In New York

In New York those farmers, who at this season have been in the habit of praying for rain, sometimes, it must be confessed, without results, are beginning to believe that their apparently unavailing requests during the last ten years are all being answered at once, for the rainy season has certainly exceeded anything expected or desired. During the latter part of last week especially, the storms, almost amounting to cloudbursts, have inundated the fields and in many sections crops of all kinds have been ruined either by washing away or by being covered with mud from six inches to a foot in depth. Tobacco has not escaped the general damage, for the tender sent out plants require heat more than additional moisture, and the continuous and fierce rainstorms have played havoc with the fields. Those who have waited for better weather before transplanting are hardly better off, for the water-soaked soil will be impossible to work for some time to come unless a hot dry spell sets in immediately.

Connecticut Valley

In the Connecticut valley every pound of the old leaf is being sought and bought wherever possible by the packers, who are beginning to have doubts about the success of the new crop as to quality. The cold weather and the constant rain have retarded the growth of plants in the open and the tent-grown variety has not escaped. In one large field of thirty acres the plants either blossomed when only twelve inches high or rotted at the roots making it necessary to plow under the whole field and replant. The exact cause of these conditions is not understood and it is beginning to dawn upon farmers that raising a few acres under shade with governmentally paid expert supervision and unlimited means is an entirely different proposition than trying the experiment with only ordinary knowledge and experience of the open-air variety. That tent growing is an occupation that should be left to those who can afford it is now the opinion of growers who must live off their crops. The open-field tobacco, while claimed to be sturdy, is not growing as fast as is considered proper and the most optimistic admit that the crop will be late.

Cigar Leaf

The crop reports from all cigar leaf growing fields are most discouraging with one exception. The unseasonably cold weather combined with the torrents of rain have done irreparable injury to the growing leaf, which on many fields has been swept away by the floods and had to be set out again. The Onondaga and Pennsylvania tobacco fields have suffered terribly by incessant downpours and the New England crops seem to have shared the same fate. Even tobacco raised under tents was not wholly exempt from the disaster. Hence a shortage of domestic leaf of the coming crop is in view, and what the quality will be will depend on the steadiness of the weather to mend it. Wisconsin alone seems to have escaped the ruinous disturbances. This is the more gratifying on account of the lack of binder stock, which is pinching the manufacturers just now more than anything else. Between this pinch and the high figure the limited binder stock in the market commands he is indeed in a tight position. But even if the growing Wisconsin comes out unscathed it will not be available at least for another year.

Pennsylvania

In the Lancaster, Pa., tobacco growing district it has been rains, rain, every day for a week. Sometimes two showers a day and on last Sunday, one of which was a very heavy, dashing one, accompanied by a very high wind. The rain was such a heavy one that hilly tobacco fields were very much washed, and as the tobacco is still small a great many plants were covered with mud, which will not tend to improve its condition. About 2 1/2 inches of rain have fallen during the week, and the farmers are now praying as earnestly for a let up in the showers as they were a short time ago for rain and what is needed now is a week of sunshine, which will do us more good than an entire Niagara. But the plants have been forging ahead at a wonderful rate and seem determined to make up for lost time.

SHOWY EFFECT OF GRAY BRICK

BUILDINGS STEADILY GROW

Work on New Public Buildings Progressing—Tiling Nearly Completed in City Hall.

Great strides have been taken during the past week toward the completion of the public buildings now under construction in this city. Finishers are putting the last touches on the wood work of the upper floors of the city hall while the down stairs work will soon reach the same point. The rising walls and chimneys of the library building indicate that work is not being discontinued although it will be a long time before the structure reaches the same stage as the municipal building.

Woodwork Varnished
The tiling on the second and third floors of the city building has been nearly laid and will be completed as soon as the stairs are in place. No work has been begun on them as yet. The woodwork on the third floor, entirely of oak, is in place and has been varnished, presenting a very handsome appearance. Cement floors have been laid throughout the basement story.

Safe in Place

The plumbing is in large part completed and the steam pipes are adjusted ready for the attachment of the radiators. The safe of the city clerk, which was moved into the building last week has been set in the permanent niche between the walls of the clerk's office where space was provided for it in the architect's plans.

That Gray Brick

Masons are busily laying brick on the Carnegie building to make up for the time lost when waiting for the arrival of materials that had been delayed by the floods of a few weeks ago. The gray brick that is used shows up remarkably well with the lining of a deeper shade that is used at intervals of a few layers of brick to relieve the monotonous effect of the unbroken succession of the brick. Whatever may be thought of the combination chosen it will at least have the advantage, if advantage it be, of making the new library one of the most striking buildings in the city.

TIPS TO FARMERS.

Fifteen years ago the population of the United States numbered 58,000,000 people. We then raised an average of 500,000,000 bushels of wheat, 1,800,000,000 bushels of corn and 600,000,000 of oats each year, while now with a population of 78,000,000 people, or an increase of 20,000,000, we raise only about, or the way it looks now we will raise only 600,000,000 bushels of wheat, 2,000,000,000 bushels of corn and 750,000,000 bushels of oats. The average for the last five years has been below that amount. Now let us take in live stock, horses, mules, cows, cattle, sheep and hogs, and add to this a steady increase in our exports of grain and its products, and you will readily see that our present crops are utterly inadequate to meet our requirements, so that unless we raise much larger crops, short selling will soon become a dangerous pastime. In round numbers we find there are 20,000,000 horses, 4,000,000 mules, 18,000,000 cows, 68,000,000 cattle, 62,000,000 sheep and 63,000,000 hogs—a big total to feed. What must be the result if the population and live stock continue increasing in number, as they will, and crops remain stationary? In this connection I would say that I believe the total area on which grain can be profitably raised is practically already under cultivation, and at no time will we raise crops much larger than we are now raising, which will mean that an average of higher prices must prevail from this on. If this proves true then short selling will become all the more dangerous. In fact the past year or two, the bear element in the markets have had rather an unpleasant time of it. The very principle of that method of trading is against the interest of the community. As a rule short sellers are not producers. This, of course, does not refer to the actual holder of grain who hedges what he has. A short seller in the true sense of the word is one who neither produces, owns, or expects to deliver what he sells, consequently can in no way be a benefit to the trade. In 1887 the United States exported 9,000,000 barrels of flour and 100,000,000 bushels of wheat. What will Europe alone require from us this year with her wheat crops falling far below previous estimates, owing to the continued wet and cold weather prevailing over there? They are having almost the same weather we have been experiencing here for the past 60 days, and may have for some time to come.

ATHLETIC MEN WERE THE BEST

STOOD A MUCH BETTER SHOW

Rush For Badges by Delegates and Others—A Final Contest.

One of the most strenuous of the strenuous struggles which took place during the Madison convention was that of the swarm of delegates, newspaper men, and would-be auditors and sight-seers who were fighting on the morning of the first session to secure their badges and tickets of admittance to the university gymnasium.

Col. Helm in Charge

Col. Helm, the sergeant at arms, had control of the seating of the hall and for days past he had been tormented by requests for tickets, advanced by a thousand and one individuals, each of whom was especially gifted above all others with qualifications which made it imperative that he should be given a seat on the platform with the guests of honor. And Col. Helm, who is above all things courteous was forced to explain why it was impossible to grant the request or else surrender up one more of the carefully husbanded three hundred seats which were located on the stage at the front of the hall.

Assemble Early

The majority of the delegates had received no badges up to Wednesday morning and at that time the hall was before the office of the adjutant general's room where the Colonel had his headquarters packed to a degree that would have made standing room in the proverbial sardine can roomy by comparison. The office opened at eight-thirty and the caucuses were held at half after ten which did not give an over allowance of time for 1,065 delegates to receive their insignia.

A Athletic Event

A football player, provided he was in good training, would have relished the skirmish that ensued, but the average business man whose daily exercise is limited to sprints for the morning car and perhaps a turn with the baby at night, had no license in that jam. A small man stood absolutely no show. His movements were wholly at the pleasure of those before and behind. If the crowd surged forward the small man did so too. Likewise backward.

Guards Have Difficulty

It was well that two sturdy guards had been detailed to guard the door and admit the men only as fast as they could be accommodated. As it was, the impetus from the pushers at the rear of the impromptu flying wedge formation would often hurl the foremost man headlong into the room despite their own struggles and those of the gate keepers to hold them back. One man remarked between his gasps for breath that it reminded him of the check room at a country dance.

Handshaking Rife

The handshaking on all sides throughout the convention would have appeared amusing had it not been for the deadly seriousness of it all. There was no fastidious touching of the finger tips, no lackadaisical mid-air wave of limp white hands but honest bone-crushing grips that taxed the physical endurance of the participants and the hands that met were those of the strong-willed, energetic American citizen, who knew what he was there for and intended to get it.

A delegate from the seventh district met a friend on the lower floor of the capitol just as the two were about to enter the elevator. Following the universal custom they grasped hands in an enthusiastic clasp. A few moments later as they emerged from the cage at the top floor, their arms were automatically continuing the pump handle motion which had been begun below. When they disappeared from sight around a bend in the hall there was no indication that the operation would run down at an early date.

Wore Straw Hats

Prominent among the men in the capitol halls and on the street were the LaCrosse delegation who could be distinguished at any range. They wore inverted gunboat skeleton straw hats that they had purchased at a man. The effect was cool at least if not aesthetic to a high degree.

Sentinel Headquarters

The Milwaukee Sentinel gave abundant evidence of its presence on the ground. Its newsboys with their white uniforms and copper lined lungs were omnipresent. The Sentinel headquarters in the block below the Park Hotel was lavishly illuminated. A large sign stretched across the street giving in hundreds of incandescent bulbs the name of the paper.

Before the entrance to the building which was occupied by the paper during the convention, and extending over the sidewalk was a band stand from which Prof. Nitschko with his Madison musicians nightly sent forth strains of popular music to the edification of the crowds assembled below. Above it was a monogram in red, white and blue of the letters T, M, and S, surmounting a large blackboard on which a cartoon artist did some rapid work with chalk. During the convention sessions bulletins of the progress at the convention hall were displayed here, and many who could not obtain admittance to the gymnasium assembled here.

SPECIAL GAZETTE BULLETIN.

Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment Station Tells of Apple Blight.

Numerous inquiries have recently been received at the Station, regarding injury to apple and pear trees. Affected twigs have usually been enclosed which were black and shriveled, the attached leaves being browned as if by fire. The injury in every case was caused by "blight."

What is Blight? The disease known as "blight," "pear blight" and "fire blight," is a contagious bacterial disease, attacking the apple, pear, quince and allied fruits. It frequently attacks the wild crab and is occasionally found on the Mountain Ash.

What it Does. Blight assumes two different modes of attack, known as twig blight and blossom blight, the cause of the two being the same. In the former, the new shoots, growth of the current season, are affected; in the latter, the blossoms and fruit spurs are destroyed and commonly a portion of the adjoining main branches.

The Conditions that Favor Blight: A wet season favors blight; a dry season hinders it; a dry season entirely checks it. The blight microbe soon perishes when exposed to dry conditions. Unfortunately, conditions that favor growth of the tree, favor blight. Heavy pruning during the dormant period, induces a strong growth of new wood and favors the development of the blight germ. Trees heavily manured with barnyard manure, are apt to be more affected than those not so well fed. Trees that are well cultivated, often blight more than those growing in soil.

How Distributed: Blossom blight is undoubtedly distributed by bees and other insects that collect honey and pollen. The light germs find lodgment in the nectary, where they multiply rapidly and are carried from tree to tree at blossoming time. The blight microbe are held together by a sticky substance and are not therefore readily disseminated by the wind. In the case of twig blight, they presumably remain within the affected tissues until set free by some agency that ruptures the bark. The mode of infection in this form of the disease is not well understood, but presumably occurs through the agency of insects. Several species of minute insects inhabit the terminal buds of growing shoots.

CORN MARKET HAS WIDE RANGE

Belated Shorts Rush to Cover and Run Price Up.

Chicago, July 18.—An early burst of strength in the July corn failed to hold and at the close this delivery was 3¢ under Wednesday's figures. The range for the day was from 60¢ down to 65 1/2¢, opening sales ranging from 60¢ to 67 1/2¢. The erratic market was the basis for renewed talk that the July deal is not yet over, though it was admitted the big shorts are all in out of the way. It was the demand from the belated shorts that ran the price up early.

ESTIMATE OF THE SALMON PACK

Figures for Columbia River to Date Are 115,000 Cases.

Portland, Ore., July 18.—This season's salmon pack on the Columbia river so far amounts to 115,000 cases. Storage plants have put up 2,000 tiers of Chinook salmon and have packed 400 tons of steelheads, the equivalent of 40,000 cases of packed product in pound cans. The total catch of salmon in the Columbia river to date this year, therefore, is estimated to be the equivalent of 115,000 cases.

MILTON

Milton, July 17.—Wednesday afternoon, July 9th, the W. C. T. U. of Milton, were invited to meet with the Union Ladies of Harmony. The weather was not propitious, but a true W. C. T. U. woman is not afraid of cold water. At about four o'clock, ladies of the Union and their guests, numbering about 30, were assembled in the home of Mrs. Howard. Although a farmer's wife is always very busy and a hard worker from early morn to the time she lays down to rest, yet one looking at these animated and intelligent women, would be surprised. Not a heavy face among them. Some bore the marks of sorrow, some the shadow of advancing years, but energetic movements and smiles predominated.

The pretty dresses, the tasteful rooms, the abundance of flowers, made up a scene to "hang on memory's walls."

The program was interesting. The music, vocal and instrumental, very good. Miss Bessie Crandall recited a piece in prose, which was exceedingly well rendered.

The regular business of the meeting was then transacted, according to parliamentary rule. Every member seemed to make it her aim to acquaint herself in perfect manner. All the details of their work was well in hand and it was delightful to see how well they harmonized.

After a few minutes of social intercourse, we were called to partake of another kind of refreshments.

The small, white-draped tables, adorned with flowers, were very pleasant to look after his business interests was served in manner that called forth the praises of their guests. Refreshed in mind and body, we felt that one afternoon was well spent.

A GUEST.

Milton fans were given a good exhibition of base ball here Monday, when Crumb's "Colts" went up against the real thing in the shape of a husky aggregation from Lake Mills. The game was fast and close, the visitors winning by a score of 7 to 5. Expensive errors largely contributed to the result, since the locals touned Watepek up for four two-baggers and as many singles, while Hinkley held Lake Mills down to one two-bagger and six singles, giving no free passes and struck out four. Watepek sent two to first and also struck out four. In the sixth, with none gone, Wurle and Vandewalker, running for Broughton, both scored, but the roosters hopes took wings when Hinkley flew out to Cook and then with the bases full, Green and Vandy went out in bunch through the agency of Watepek to Mills to Demerit. In the ninth, Homer scored and Vandy reached the third sack, with one gone, but the next two were easy outs. Errors, Milton 5, Lake Mills 4. Battery, Milton, Hinkley and Broughton, for Lake Mills, Wapoteek and Mills. Umpire, Wm. Vickerman.

Parents' Responsibility Great

It is the right of every child to be well born, and to the parents it must look for health and happiness.

How inconceivably great is the parents' responsibility, and how important that no taint of disease is left in the blood to be transmitted to the helpless child, entailing the most pitiable suffering, and marking its little body with offensive sores and eruptions, catarrh of the nose and throat, weak eyes, glandular swellings, brittle bones, white swelling and deformity.

How can parents look upon such little sufferers and not reproach themselves for bringing so much misery into the world? If you have any disease lurking in your system, how can you expect well developed, healthy children? Cleanse your own blood and build up your health, and you have not only enlarged your capacity for the enjoyment of the pleasures of life, but have discharged a duty all parents owe to posterity, and made mankind healthier and happier.

There is no remedy that so surely reaches deep-seated, stubborn blood troubles as S. S. S. It searches out even hereditary poisons, and removes every taint from the blood, and builds up the general health. If weaklings are growing up around you, right the wrong by putting them on a course of S. S. S. at once. It is a purely vegetable medicine, harmless in its effects, and can be taken by both old and young without fear of any bad results.

Write us about your case, and let our physicians advise and help you. This will cost you nothing, and we will also send our book on blood and skin diseases.

WHAT WILL THEY DO.

The republican press of the state, in very large majority, has strenuously opposed the renomination of governor LaFollette. The claim made by the organs of the administration, that many of these papers were subsidized was too silly to command serious attention.

The average newspaper man possesses common sense, as well as an average degree of honor. If he controls a republican paper, he can usually give a reason for the faith that is in him. If his experience is at all extended, he has long since discovered that politics as a source of revenue, is a snare and a delusion, so he is not a politician for revenue.

The Republican newspaper men of state, as a class, have been opposed to LaFolletteism, ever since it was sprung on the state, because they did not regard it as good republicanism. During the campaign of two, four and six years ago, they were lined up against LaFollette's candidacy. Their denunciations were not so vigorous as during the present campaign, because occasion did not demand it. The governor was so destitute of newspaper support, that his friends found it necessary to establish organs in various parts of the state.

The average newspaper man is also intelligent. He does not attempt to mould public sentiment, but is satisfied to reflect it, and if possible, crystallize it. The republican press of the state has been with the conservative element of the party, during the campaign, because that element is dominant. Rock and Dane counties are fair samples, and every fair-minded man knows that if democrats had been barred from the caucuses, that republicanism would have won, hands down.

The republican press has no apologies to offer for the course pursued, or nothing to take back. It may have furnished the democratic party with plenty of campaign thunder, but that could not be helped. It conscientiously opposed a man for governor because the best interests of the party demanded it. The fight was waged and lost, and the question now confronts the press, is, what shall be done?

There is but one answer to this question, that confronts so many republican newspaper men today, and that is, support the nominee of the convention. That means loyalty to the party and the party is greater than any man connected with it.

The Gazette has been an honest and vigorous supporter of conservative republicanism. It has not changed its creed, neither has it any leanings toward democracy.

Governor LaFollette has secured his renomination and is now the candidate of the republican party. Every republican paper in the state owes to the party, loyal support. It may lack elements of enthusiasm, but there should be no hesitancy about the principles involved. The governor will have the support of the republican press, to which his renomination in a republican convention, entitles him. After his election, he will be subject to the same criticism that his official life has excited, unless he learns by experience, that the party is greater than the man.

FOREIGN COMMERCE.

The drop of $105,000,000 in exports and increase of $79,000,000 in imports, is not looked upon by the Chief of the Bureau of Statistics as a cause for anxiety regarding the future of our foreign commerce.

"It was perfectly apparent when the result of the drought of 1901 became known," said Mr. Austin, "that our exports in 1902 must fall off, and the only surprise to me is that the loss was not greater. The corn crop, as is well known, is the chief reliance of our farmers for preparing for market the live stock, of which we now export over 200 million dollars' worth annually, in the form of provisions and live animals. In addition to this, we have been exporting about 100 million dollars' worth of the surplus corn and oats left over after feeding the live stock of the country. The great reduction of the corn crop by drought, of course, reduced to almost nothing, the surplus corn that could be spared, and also caused the use at home of a much larger share of the oats, and so reduced the available surplus of that class of farm products. The result is that the exportation of corn fell from 177 million bushels in the fiscal year 1901, to 27 million bushels in the fiscal year just ended, and that of oats, from 37 million bushels to 9 millions. The drop in the value of corn and cornmeal and oats and oatmeal exported, is over 76 million dollars. Fortunately the farmers learned quickly to economize their depleted corn supply and to substitute other materials for it, and therefore the reduction in exportation of provisions and live animals is only about 6 million dollars.

THE FUTURE.

LaFollette has received the renomination for Governor. He has secured control of the state republican party. He has dominated the actions of the convention. He has nominated for the rest of the state offices, men whom he willed. He has formed the platform that republicans must walk to gain victory this coming fall. He has secured an endorsement for Wisconsin's greatest son of such a nature, that it is insulting. He has reached the zenith of his glory. To day he represents the republicans of the state of Wisconsin and they have all bowed down to him.

His convention has been dominated by young boys. Children in the political game. They have tried boyish methods in their jubilation over the defeat of the older and cooler heads of the party. Their manner has been insulting to the men who have grown gray in the service of the party. Men who stood at the wheel when the dominant power of today was in swaddling clothes. It is hard to sit quietly by and see so great a man as Spooner sacrificed by a lot of youngsters, who are carried away by a political fanaticism, such as broke on the democratic party in 1896. It is a sad sight to see so grand a party as the Republican, broken and snappish asunder by a few hours of senseless talk and insulting remarks.

Senator O'Neill's rebuke to the rowdy, boisterous and ignorant boys, who told him to sit down, when he was seconding Senator Whitehead's nomination: "You own the convention and have had your say, now I propose to have mine," should have quieted them, but it did not. They continued their insults. They whistled and catcalled and in every way showed the rowdy instincts. It was a convention of boys. A convention controlled by the voters of the state of Wisconsin, who sent as their delegates, boys blinded to the conservative element, boys with no forgiveness in their hearts, only seeking revenge.

LaFollette is at the zenith of his power. LaFollette has control of the state, has control of the party. Republicans have intrusted their political future in his hands. Let him beware of their trust. Let him not think himself so great a man, that others are but pygmies, chawling at his feet. LaFollette is but a man. Ambition has led him on. He has now reached the pinnacle of his fame. Let him remember that greatness does not always mean forgetfulness and that even defeated and subdued people, will some day turn when the iron hand of oppression grinds in too deeply.

History repeats itself. Nations have risen and fallen by the domineering of a man. Political parties have become wrecked upon the shoals of blind following and the leaders of the defeated losts have retired to oblivion. Let it be a warning. For the sake of a Republican victory this coming fall, let Republicans stand shoulder to shoulder and let the head of our ticket reach out the hand of good fellowship to all. Reach it out or he will fall and great will be the fall thereof.

AN INSULT TO THE NATION.

The action of the convention at Madison, in refusing to endorse Senator Spooner without requiring of him an oath of allegiance to the Republican party, is an insult to the man as well as to the party. It is a disgrace to the intelligence of the state and will be so regarded throughout the nation.

A convention composed of men who profess to be Republicans, many of them holding seats in the convention, as the result of democratic support, had the audacity to call in question the loyalty of the man who stands today next to the President, one of the greatest statesmen that the nation has ever produced.

One third of the convention, 353 men, rebelled and would not become a party to this high handed outrage.

These men have been life-long Republicans. They would not stultify themselves to gratify the whim of the chief executive, or the majority of the convention, which represented him.

A grave mistake has been made, for which the party will be held responsible. The question is asked on every hand, "What will Senator Spooner do?" A question that is difficult to answer. He will feel very keenly the insult heaped upon him and unless his friends, who care more for him than for theoretical reform, rally around him, his days in the United States Senate, are ended.

A strenuous effort will be made to elect a legislature antagonistic to him, unless he bows to the will of the faction temporarily in power. In doing this, he is asked to sacrifice manhood and principle. This he will not do.

While the convention closes the factional fight in the party, it remains for the Republicans of the state, to say whether Mr. Spooner shall be sacrificed, or whether he shall continue to serve the state or nation in the high office which he fills with such marked ability.

PRESS COMMENT

River Falls Journal: "Gentlemen may cry peace! peace! but there is no peace." That is about the way it looks. Perhaps the "peace" that the factions are fighting for should be spelled differently—"piece" and has reference to "ple." And to a man up a tree that is about how it looks. There is no peace. The factions are wrought up to a pitch of exasperation and will fight it out on that line until sunset on the fourth day of next November. And when they view the battlefield over in retrospect they will find that both sides have "gained a loss" in the scrap. But it has come to the pitch where each cries: "Lay on, MacDuff, and damned be he who first cries hold, enough."

Superior Telegram: The evening Telegram has suggested that Superior make an effort to secure the naval training school. Now comes Kenosha, a little town of about 12,000 inhabitants, situated on Lake Michigan, making a strong effort to secure it. If Kenosha has one argument in its favor Superior has many. Even though it was not secured the advertising that the city would receive would possibly pay for all the trouble. It's worth something to have the reputation of wanting everything.

We also think that is what "Old" manes.

CRAWFORD FAMILY HOLDS REUNION QUARTET FROM HERE ATTEND

Pleasant Gathering Held at Barron, Wis., This Week—Group of Talented Musicians.

Archie Crawford returned home this morning from Barron, Wis., where he and his wife have been attending a reunion of the Crawford family. Mrs. Crawford will remain for a longer visit. The Crawford family now consists of an aged father, five brothers and two sisters and they have always kept up the custom of meeting together as often as possible. Three years ago the reunion was held in this city at the homes of Archie and J. D. Crawford.

This year the family met at Barron at the homes of W. B. Crawford and Mrs. C. S. Taylor, all the members of the family being present. Those who met around the family dinner table last Sunday were John Crawford, head of the family who makes his home with his children, residing the greater part of the time at Nellie Neb., Mr. and Mrs. Archie Crawford and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Crawford, of this city; Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Crawford, of Sioux City, Ia.; Mr. and Mrs. E. Crawford, of Atlantic City, Ia.; Mr. and Mrs. George Crawford, of Austin, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Crawford, and Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Taylor, of Barron, Wis.; and Mr. and Mrs. Will Gorst, of Nellie Neb.

All the Crawford brothers and sisters are finished musicians and talented vocalists. By a remarkable coincidence their voices blend most effectively and the six brothers form a male sextet which is said to excel the majority of professional combinations. Consequently music always forms one of the predominant, delightful features of these family reunions.

NEWS OF THE CITY IN BRIEF.

Laurel Lodge Saturday: There will be a meeting of Laurel Lodge D. of H. at East Side Odd Fellows hall on Saturday evening.

Meet Tonight: Regular meeting of Rock River Encampment No. 3, I. O. O. F., will be held this evening.

Court Notes: Mary Monahan vs. Ann Cribben is the case that is on trial in C. W. Reeder's court this afternoon. The case was called at 9 o'clock this morning and was held over until two o'clock for trial.

Smut Appears: Smut in large quantities has begun to make its appearance in the oat fields. Unless the rain lets up and we have some dry weather the crop will be almost a total loss. Samples of the crop pleated in different parts of the country show that the damage is widespread.

Washout Near Rockton: Traffic on the Rockford and Davis Junction branch of the St. Paul road was seriously interfered with last night by a washout near Rockton. The storm which struck the city last night about six o'clock was quite severe off to the southwest and large quantities of rain fell.

Century Heart Club: The Century Heart Club met yesterday afternoon at the home of D. Ryan on South Main street. The prizes in the card games were won by Mrs. W. E. Nightengale, Mrs. W. D. Morrissey and Mrs. W. H. Brazzel. Choice refreshments were served by the hostess.

Ready For Bridge: Contractor Cullen has a pile driver in readiness to begin work of strengthening Milwaukee street bridge which is to be repaired and re-decked. He is at work at present in front of Brown Bros.

An Electric Automobile: Dr. W. H. Palmer has an electric automobile which was built for him by the National Vehicle Co., of Indianapolis, Ind. The machine is run by a storage battery which will last for fifty miles of travel without recharging. The doctor has things so arranged that he can recharge the battery before leaving the barn. The machine is almost noiseless which is one advantage over the gasoline and steam machines.

Street Railway Work: During the last week and a half the repairing gang of the city street railway line have been busily occupied in repairing stretches of track where the ties had rotted in the ground and the rails spread or become infirm owing to the heavy rains. This added to the work of the pole setting crew of the interurban and the tracklayers on that line have lately given an appearance of great activity to the electric car systems of the city.

Assault and Battery: Frank Hanes, a resident of the First ward will spend the next ninety days in jail for assault on his wife. Wednesday he got into a struggle with his wife and ended it by knocking her down and kicking her in the side and otherwise abusing her. When threatened with arrest he said that he would shoot any officer that attempted it. Officers Brown and Fanning went after him yesterday afternoon and succeeded in bringing him before Judge Flifield without any trouble. Judge Flifield gave him ninety days and will make it more the next time that he is brought up for such an offense.

Skill Appreciated.

The new, painless method used by Dr. Richards, dentist, is making him friends every day. The latest enthusiast, who cannot say too much in praise of this method, is Mr. Wallace Watts, proprietor of the newly refitted barber shop next to the opera house entrance. He says: "It beats anything I ever tried. It put the nerves of my face to sleep, so that I felt no pain." Dr. Richards' office is over Hall, Sayles & Flifield's.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS GO INTO CAMP

THE ANNUAL SUMMER OUTING

Juniors and Intermediates Will Spend Ten Days at Lake Delavan—Base Ball Next Month.

Y. M. C. A. members of the Junior and Intermediate departments will go into camp at Lake Delavan on August tenth to remain for ten days. About twenty-five will probably be in the party.

For five or six years past the local Y. M. C. A. has gone into camp for a week or ten days, at some time during the summer months. In past years it has usually been the case that only one department has taken part in this outing, but this year both the Intermediates and the Juniors will make the trip together, for a little over a week of fishing, swimming and what other sports the lake at Delavan holds open to the summer pleasure seeker.

Will Number Twenty.

It is impossible at this date to tell the exact number who will be able to go into camp at that date, but it is estimated that at least twenty and probably more will take their vacation at this time. Last year there were thirteen in the party.

Delavan Lake Chosen.

The place chosen for the 1902 camp in Delavan Lake where the boys will occupy tents on the Assembly grounds.

The manager of the Senior baseball team is in correspondence with eight or nine different teams in regard to base ball games for the coming month and a series of six games are to be arranged for the coming month on the home grounds. There has been no difficulty experienced in finding teams that wish to play return games in this place, but there is more trouble found in arranging for the right dates for the games.

ST. PAUL TRACKS TO BE SHELTERED

Shed Will Extend from New Passenger Depot Over Three Tracks—Rain Hinders Work.

The unusual amount of rain which falls daily seriously interferes with the work on the new St. Paul station.

The contractors, however, keep the men at work whenever it is possible to do so and are making fair progress with the work. The station will be a handsome building when completed.

It is being of red pressed brick outlined in black with Bedford stone trimmings. According to the plans, the car sheds will extend over three tracks and make a covering for the trains in all sorts of weather. They will reach from Academy almost to Jackson street and will be quite an innovation for this city.

What Good Vision Means.

Consult a thorough specialist in this line. W. F. Hayes is recognized as among the most thorough refractarians of the age. He is not only a specialist in refraction, but is a thorough Manufacturing Optician. He has the ability to make the glasses and frame from the rough material to the finest finished goods. The necessity of being a good mechanic is as essential in fitting glasses as any other feature. Mr. Hayes is a thorough mechanic and has practiced the optical profession for over 15 years, the last 5 being devoted to this entirely. Every pair of glasses prescribed by him are under his personal supervision and his direct connection with two large manufacturing houses places him second to no one in the delicate practice of the optical profession. Mr. Hayes can be consulted at his office with F. C. Cook & Co. Saturdays and Mondays.

Grand Opening on Saturday.

On Saturday evening Dan Sheridan will have a grand opening at his new saloon at the corner of River and Pleasant streets, and it will be a big event. His new place is one of the finest in the city, and will be opened with all the honor it deserves. CHILDREN MADE HAPPY.

Frances Jackman Entertains Friends At A Birthday Party

Little Miss Frances Jackman celebrated the fifth anniversary of her birth very happily this afternoon with the assistance of a company of her youthful friends who were invited to spend a few hours with her at the Sinclair street home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Jackman.

The little people had a merry time with the games provided for their amusement and they enjoyed heartily, with the unmix'd pleasure of childhood, the tempting birthday supper which was faultlessly served. Little Miss Frances received a number of handsome gifts as souvenirs of the day and the children who were her guests will long remember the pleasures of the occasion.

Do You Wonder Why?

You probably wonder why we keep continually harping about our 25-cent coffee and 50-cent tea. Simply because we have the quality to back up every statement made. We have had years of experience in the exclusive sale of teas, coffees and spices and it is this experience that now makes us leaders in this line. All we ask is a chance to prove this statement.

BOAT CAPSIZE; FOURTEEN DROWN

Squall Strikes an Overloaded Craft and It Turns Turtle.

EXPERT SWIMMERS OVERCOME

Endeavor to Rescue Some of the Women and Lose Their Lives—Party Consisted of College Students and School Teachers.

Appledore Island, Isles of Shoals, N. H., July 18.—Twelve girls and two men were drowned when a whale boat containing a party of sixteen waiters and waitresses of the Oceanic hotel on Appledore Island was overturned by a squall 300 feet from the shore.

The men were college students serving as waiters during vacation and several of the girls were school teachers. The bodies of nine were recovered.

The party was in charge of Skipper Fred Miles, an experienced boatman, and no danger was apprehended when the party started out. When 30 feet from the landing a squall arose and in an instant the boat was bottom up and the young people were struggling in the water.

Only Three Rescued.

The accident was witnessed from both Appledore and Star Islands, and within a few minutes the steamer Sam Adams and a score of boats went to the rescue. The confusion was so great, however, that only three were rescued alive and five bodies of the fourteen drowned were lost.

As quickly as possible the nine lifeless ones were placed in charge of doctors on the shore of Appledore Island and every effort made to resuscitate them, but the efforts were in vain and the nine bodies are in a morgue on the mainland at Portsmouth.

Among the drowned were H. Coleman Farrington and W. A. Alward, both law students at Harvard, rooming at Forsyth hall. Alward and Farrington were good swimmers and they lost their lives in an effort to save some of the women.

List of the Dead.

Mary J. Adams, Ena Mabel Adams, W. A. Alward, Elizabeth Bowes, Katherine Bowes, Bessie Chase, M. C. Farrington, Laura Gilmore, Bertha Graham, Isabella Knouska, Eva Marshall, May Marshall, Minnie McDonald, Annie Sheehan.

The Misses Bowes were school teachers in Saxonville, and the Misses Marshall filled similar positions in Haverhill.

The bodies of Farrington, Alward, Bessie Chase, Eva Marshall, and Isabella Knouska have not yet been recovered.

Skiper Miles told the following story of the disaster:

Struck by a Squall.

"We left for a sail around Appledore Island, and as there was quite a heavy sea I hugged close to the shore just avoiding the rocks. The wind was dead ahead and I jogged along as easy as possible until Malaga Gut was reached, when I had to tack in order to fetch ahead for the wharf. I told the girls to change seats, and had hardly got the words out of my mouth when the squall struck and a splash of water came against the boat and all aboard fell to the leeward, causing the craft to fill in a second."

Skiper Miles feels that the disaster was due principally to the fact that the boat was overloaded.

IT MAKES WOMEN HAPPY.

"I had been a sufferer for many years from nervousness with all its symptoms and complications," writes Mrs. G. N. Fisher, of 1561 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. "I was constantly going to see a physician or purchasing medicine. My husband at last induced me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. After taking one bottle and following your advice I was so encouraged that I took five more bottles of 'Favorite Prescription.' I continued taking it and felt that I was improving faster than at first. I am not now cross and irritable, and I have a good color in my face; have also gained ten pounds in weight and one thousand pounds of comfort, for I am a new woman once more, and your advice and your 'Favorite Prescription' is the cause of it."

Two Strong Leaders—

GENERAL STRIKE GIVEN BLACK EYE

President Mitchell Submits a Plan Whereby It Can Be Avoided.

ASKS $50,000 APPROPRIATION

Also That the Individual Unions Give as Much as They Can and Members Contribute $1 Per Week to the Anthracite Men.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 18.—John Mitchell urged the 1,000 delegates to the convention of the United Mine Workers of America not to vote for a general strike in sympathy with the anthracite strikers and presented a plan which he claims will settle the strike in Pennsylvania and West Virginia and give victory to the men.

President Mitchell's speech practically ended all chances for a general strike. The Illinois, Iowa and Ohio miners caucused and decided to vote against the strike proposition and in favor of Mitchell's plan and the large majority of delegates are now opposed to a strike. Anthracite men who favored a strike were beaten in caucus and practically abandoned any idea of a general strike.

Plan to Avoid Strike.
The plan of President Mitchell, briefly outlined, is as follows:

That the mine workers appropriate $50,000 for the relief of the anthracite miners.

That the unions appropriate as large a sum as they can afford.

That an assessment of $1 per week be levied on all members of unions.

That all officers contribute 25 per cent of their salaries.

That an appeal be made to all trade unions and citizens generally to aid the miners.

That an address be issued appealing to the American people to bring such pressure to bear as will compel the operators to submit to arbitration.

Anthracite Men Caucus.
President Mitchell's recommendations, if adopted by the convention, would have settled the entire question for which the convention was called, and an immediate adjournment, would have followed. A motion to adopt the suggestions of President Mitchell provoked a long debate, in which the general sentiment was against the ordering of the strike.

The men from the anthracite regions finally made a request that they be allowed to hold a caucus to determine upon an expression of opinion as to what they thought the convention should do, and asked an adjournment of the convention for this purpose. Their request was granted.

Urged to Remain.
The men who were in favor of a strike were in a decided minority in the convention. Three speeches were made by members of the anthracite districts asking that the soft coal men walk out, and twice as many were made by the anthracite men urging the soft coal men to continue at work.

The hour for calling the convention to order was 10 o'clock. President Mitchell came upon the platform and was greeted with cheers. Secretary Wilson shared the applause. Prompt to the second President Mitchell brought down his gavel.

Secretary Wilson read the call for the convention and President Mitchell called for the report of the committee on credentials. The reading of this by Michael McTaggart consumed much time, as the report contained the name of every delegate with a statement of the number of the votes possessed by each man. The convention adjourned for lunch.

Meetings to Be Open.
When the convention met in the afternoon a motion was made and carried that the convention go at once into executive session. John P. Reese of Iowa moved a reconsideration of the vote by which this action was taken, declaring that in view of the momentous issues depending upon the action of the convention, secret sessions were undesirable.

"The entire United States is watching this convention," said Mr. Reese, "and we must take no chances of being placed before the country in a wrong light."

The speech of Mr. Reese carried the day, the vote was reconsidered, and it was decided that the meetings of the convention would be open to the public.

FAIL TO ENDORSE SENATOR SPOONER

of the state, but nevertheless the course of the convention has made it impossible for a statesman of the rank of John C. Spooner to accept the terms offered.

John C. Spooner should of course have been endorsed unreservedly, without being tied to the triumphal car of the victors in the convention, or else should have been left alone altogether. It would have been far more manly, far more considerate to the self-respect of a statesman of the rank of Senator Spooner, for the convention to have simply declared that it was not the duty of a state convention to interfere in the senatorial matter. In this there would have been many to have agreed with it, for it would have been but the truth.

Milwaukee Journal: So! Spooner is no longer a republican, no matter what the President and his party in congress may think, unless he will eat crow and bow to the dog tax, the ice tax, the Stevens bill and a few other state matters devised by the Half-Breeds. Well, plenty of men can be found who will swallow the bait whole to get his place. But they will not be Spooners.
